"Lost in the Stars"
An evening of Classical meets Jazz meets Broadway
The Music of Bernstein, Weill & Sondheim*

Lost in the Stars is a wonderful project produced by Ted Howe. Vocalist Deborah Shulman, her brother-in-law trombonist Larry Zalkind, and his wife and son are joined by some of the finest musicians on the West Coast. They chose the sophisticated show tunes of Kurt Weill, Leonard Bernstein, and Stephen Sondheim. The mix of classical and jazz elements, the inventiveness of the arranging and the quality of the performances can best be described by the term often used by Duke Ellington, "Beyond Category."

- International Trombone Association Journal

"Larry's trombone is sensitive and intuitive, and his accompaniment is a marriage of tonality, structure and sensibility. "

- The Jazzine.com

"The lyrics here are given immense, concentrated attention and interpretation by Deborah, whose acting skills are formidable."

- Talkin Broadway

"Dripping with a mature, sophisticated edge, this is cabaret/martini music that you would go somewhere to hear, not to just talk over as the glasses clink. A top shelf effort throughout, these indelible composers have a new set of champions to spread their word."
